OUR SENTIMENTS EXPRESSED

Lexington Herald Makes Some Timely Suggestions to The Burley Association

In a recent issue of the Lexington Herald a strong editorial appeared, making some kindly and timely suggestions to the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association. The editorial so well expresses the sentiments of the Record, we are publishing it here in full.—Editor.

"The Herald is glad that the officers of the Burley Co-operative Association have announced publicly, through the columns of the papers, the advances which will be made on the various grades of tobacco, and welcomes the statement that the members of the association are satisfied with the prospect of the 1922 crop and with the advances being paid to them on the deliveries of their tobacco at the receiving plants of the association.

All readers of The Herald know how earnestly we advocated the organization of the association, and how persistently we have expressed our confidence in the success of the association. Because of that advocacy and that belief, we feel we will not be misunderstood if we suggest, with all courtesy, that there is, in our judgment need for greater publicity in regard to the affairs of the association than there has heretofore been. In making this suggestion we think it incumbent to say that we do not know a better newspaper man or publicity man than J. Sherman Porter, who has charge of the publicity of the Burley Association, but we realize, of course, that he not only should be, but must be, controlled by the policy of the association, and in our judgment that policy has so far been a mistaken one.

We appreciate fully that those who are not trained to appreciate the need for publicity, particularly those whose lives have been spent in the conduct of private business, have an innate, as well as cultivated aversion to publicity, and it is not unnatural that the officers of a great organization, far and away the most important in the burley belt, should to a large extent be controlled by the same feeling that would be dominant and proper in the conduct of a private corporation.

The Burley Association, however, is not in any sense a private corporation. One of the chief arguments in favor of its organization was the somewhat revolutionary provision that every member should have equal voice. In a corporation the member's vote is measured by the amount of stock he owns. In the Burley Association it is not measured by the amount of land he controls, by the amount of tobacco he pledges, nor by the service he renders, but is the very ultimate development of democracy in that the individual, as an individual, has equal voice with every other individual in determining by vote the policy of the association.

To make this effective, every member should have as full information as it is possible to transmit to him, about every matter that can be revealed without injury to the association.

The Burley Association, however, is not in any sense a private corporation. One of the chief arguments in favor of its organization was the somewhat revolutionary provision that every member should have equal voice. In a corporation the member's vote is measured by the amount of stock he owns. In the Burley Association it is not measured by the amount of land he controls, by the amount of tobacco he pledges, nor by the service he renders, but is the very ultimate development of democracy in that the individual, as an individual, has equal voice with every other individual in determining by vote the policy of the association.

To make this effective, every member should have as full information as it is possible to transmit to him, about every matter that can be revealed without injury to the association.

We feel somewhat responsible for the policy that has been followed. Due to our earnest purpose to do all possible to aid the association and nothing that could injure it, we gladly agreed, if, in fact, we did not suggest, that the association itself have an authorized publicity man to give to the public, in authentic and accurate form, the information which should be given. As a corollary of that arrangement, the members of The Herald were instructed to look only to the representative of the association as the source of news in regard to the affairs of the association. But we now know that much greater publicity should be given than has been and that various matters that have either intentionally or unintentionally been unrecorded in the public prints should be recorded, so all may know the facts and false and unfounded charges may be dispelled in the light of accurate information.

As an illustration, there was wide interest in the prices paid for the fifty-four million pounds of tobacco purchased from the association by Mr. Kirk. It was entirely reasonable and proper for the officers of the association to make no announcement of these prices that could by any chance lead to false hopes or extravagant anticipation. But according to report it has been some weeks since that transaction was closed, the tobacco delivered and paid for. In our judgment every member of the association and every resident of the burley belt had a right to know what were the prices paid and what would be the approximate amount for distribution as quickly as the officers of the association had that information.

The association is not only founded on the basis of a democracy in which each individual has equal voice with every other individual, but it is founded on the principle of community interest, and the chief plea for its organization was that every class was interested and would benefit through its successful operation.

If a personal reference may be permissible, we realized fully that the organization of the association meant a direct curtailment of the advertising revenue of The Herald. With the tobacco warehouses in competition, The Herald could count on advertising patronage during the selling season to the extent of thousands of dollars. With the association in control of all the warehouses, there would, of course, be no such revenue. The merchants of Lexington and of every town in which there was a loose leaf market realized that there would be a curtailment of retail trade during what had been the congested season for the sale of the whole crop.

But the merchants and The Herald, accepting and adopting the plea that the association is, in essence, a community organization, aided in every way possible to bring it into life and to make it a success, and the bankers of the Blue Grass also rendered most notable service. Every banker, every merchant, whether in a city or at a crossroads, every contractor, every business man, has an interest to know quickly the amount of money received by the association, the amount of debt that the association owed, and the amount, therefore, that will be distributed to the growers. It is not, in our judgment, either wise or proper for there to be any further retention of that knowledge by the officers of the association beyond the day they knew accurately the amount that will be distributed.

There are other incidental matters which we believe should be made public, if our view of the function, the spirit and the future of the association is correct. The association is, in our judgment, founded on the postulate, and its future depends on the assumption, that it will secure the services of the very best men whose services can be purchased for every position from the most modestly paid employee to the highest salaried officer. It should not be a question of price but a question of efficiency and of service rendered, and there is no justification for the employment of any man in any position, high or low, except that he is the very best man that can be employed. In our opinion, no public officer is more responsible for the future comfort, culture and happiness of the burley belt than the officers of the Burley Association. If we be correct, each and every one of them occupies a dual position—that of an officer of the association, and of a servant of the people upon whose support the success of the association depends. We therefore think it not only wise but incumbent upon the officers of the association to have it a matter of general knowledge as it is in regard to public officers, who are the officers, why they are chosen, and the wages or salaries paid to them.

It may be that many will differ with us. It may be of course, that we are in error. But we believe every matter affecting the association that can be made public without injustice to others or injury to the association, should be made public.

The officials of the association are human. They are liable at times to make errors. Tremendous success has attended the first year of its operation, due in large measure to the ability and service of the officers, but also due in large measure to causes over which they had no con-

Arnold-Speake

Mr. Robert Louis Speake, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Speake, and Miss Lilly Mae Arnold, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Arnold, eloped to Jeffersonville, Ind., last Saturday afternoon, where they were married. It came as quite a surprise to their friends, who will extend congratulations and best wishes upon their return.

The bride is very beautiful indeed and the groom is energetic, moral and deserving young man.

Middleton-Herron

Mr. Sam Herron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Herron, of this city, was married in Cincinnati last Wednesday to Miss Elizabeth Middleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Middleton, of this city. The marriage is the culmination of a long and happy courtship and the many friends of both extend hearty congratulations and wish them much happiness thru life. They will make their home in Corbin, Ky., where the groom holds a lucrative position with the L. & N. Railroad.

Bryant-Murphy

The marriage of Mr. Homer Murphy, of this city to Miss Cora Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bryant, also of this city, was solemnized in Danville last Thursday evening. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple motored thru to Cincinnati, where they spent several days, returning to this city Tuesday where they will make their home. Mr. Murphy is one of the foremost and most competent mechanic at Haselden Bros. Garage and has many warm friends who will congratulate him upon winning his charming young bride.

Editor Walton Marries

It was quite a surprise to his friends in Garrard when the news reached here of the marriage of Editor E. C. Walton, of Stanford and Mrs. Anna Evans Miller, of Mt. Vernon, the ceremony taking place in Louisville last Monday afternoon. The groom is editor and publisher of the Interior Journal, one of the best country newspapers in the state, while his bride owns and edits the Mt. Vernon Signal. She is also the official stenographer in her district and holds a secretarial position on the State Railroad Commission. She is very attractive and charming young widow. This is the third matrimonial venture for the groom and a more popular gentleman does not live in Kentucky. A host of Garrard friends extend hearty congratulations.

Farm Sells

The James Swope farm containing 217 acres was sold last week, privately to Mr. J. H. Goggins, of Lincoln county. The farm lies near Hubble and is considered a good one. The price was not given out.

There is but one Go-Getta-Man.

Ground Barley, Cream Dairy Feed, Horse and Mule Feed, Wheat Middlings, Purina Cow Chow, Purina Pig Chow. Hudson & Farnau.

There have been two short crops of tobacco; the crop this year, is declared to be of the best quality that has been produced in the last decade.

The real test is yet to come. It is far better that every person in the Blue Grass shall be made to realize that the officers and representatives of the association have no false pride of opinion, and have an intense desire to keep in touch with every class of the community, bankers, newspaper men, farmers—all who make up the great mass upon the sentiment of which depends, ultimately, the continued success of the association, and when mistakes are made to give the definite, accurate information in regard to those mistakes, so that they may not be magnified either through ignorance or intent.

We earnestly hope the officers of the association will direct the publicity department to furnish the newspapers all facts in which the members of the association and the public are interested, for we desire to continue the present arrangement, under which the news of the association comes through the accredited representative of the association, rather than to resume the practice of gathering that news through the regular staff and crops of correspondents of The Herald, with the possibility always of not being able to secure it accurately when it is given by those who do not have full knowledge.

Draws Little Stove

The miniature Majestic stove that was given away by Conn Brothers last Saturday afternoon was drawn by Mr. Tom Wells, of this county. The drawing attracted a large crowd and many little girls were disappointed that they should not have held the lucky number. Mr. Wells has five little girls who were made over joyous at having received so handsome and valuable little stove.

Good Service

Postmaster Brown and his corps of assistants, gave the public unusual good service during the holiday rush, keeping the window for the public open several hours last Sunday and two hours over the usual time on Christmas day in order to hand out the large amount of packages that was on hand. The public we are sure are deeply grateful for this service, for no better or more efficient set of officials can be found than those in the Lancaster postoffice.

Scott

William S. Scott, aged 57 years, died at his home on the Buckeye pike yesterday morning, after several months illness of tuberculosis.

Mr. Scott conducted a blacksmith business near his home for several years and was well liked by his neighbors and friends. He leaves a wife and several children, who have the deepest sympathy of all in the loss of a father and husband. Burial took place today in the Lancaster cemetery.

Good Sale

A splendid crowd turned out last Friday to attend the personality sale of household effects of Sam Cotton. The bidding was never more spirited than at this sale and everything sold well. The household goods totaling about $2,500. The dining room set brought $515.00 and was purchased by Mrs. J. T. Coy, of Madison. Col. Am Bourne was the auctioneer and did his work well, as he generally does.

Buys City Property

Mr. Charlie Rigby has recently purchased the property of Clarence Green on Danville avenue, for $4,500 cash and will move with his family to Lancaster in the next few days. We are glad to welcome Mr. Rigby and his family and trust their sojourn with us will be permanent.

More Turkeys

Mrs. C. M. Huette, of Bryantville sold twelve turkeys a few weeks ago that weighed 242 pounds and for which she received $86.08. Another extra good turkey sale.

"Vibration" is The Ruling Factor in The Universe

Universal forces operate on the law of vibration. In the human body the mental impulses (mental forces) delivered from the brain to every part of the body are simply mental vibrations.

100 per cent is considered by us as the perfect degree. When the mental forces are hindered, do not vibrate at least 100 per cent, we have a diseased body—the cell structure ceases to function normally.

Adjusting the subluxated vertebra in the spinal column assures 100 per cent nervous flow of energy—vibration is not hindered.

Train Hits Truck

Price Floyd, colored, and driver for the truck of the Garrard Milling Company, was severely injured last Thursday when a train on the Southern Railway struck his truck at the crossing near Danville on the Harrodsburg pike. Floyd was thrown from the machine and was knocked unconscious. He was taken to the Danville hospital and immediate medical attention was given him. He has recovered sufficiently to be brought home and is now improving. The truck was badly damaged. Floyd was returning from Harrodsburg where he had taken a load of tobacco for the Burley Association.

Legion Meeting

On Tuesday, January 2nd., there will be a meeting of the Heidelberg Post of the American Legion at the I. O. O. F. Hall in Lancaster at 7:30 P. M.

This is a very important meeting and it is hoped that every ex-service man in Garrard County will attend. If you are an ex-service man but are not a member of the American Legion please bear in mind the advantages of belonging to such a real live 100 per cent American organization and come in on above mentioned date and turn in your application.

"You'll know and understand"—watch for the Go-Getta-Man.

To Burley Members

Growers having Registration Numbers from 1 to 91 inclusive, will please call Garrard Warehouse (Phone No. 505) and get date for delivery, for next week.

All members who have not registered, who have tobacco READY FOR DELIVERY may call by phone or in person and receive your Registration Number and watch the paper each week for your number.

New Champion Cow

For Kentucky

With a 365-day semi-official record of 24,907 pounds of milk containing 825.3 pounds butterfat equivalent to 1,031.6 pounds butter, Oakwood Segis De Koi Johanna, an eight-year-old purebred Holstein, is the new Kentucky champion butter producing cow over all breeds and ages. She is owned by the Kentucky Holstein Farm at Bardstown.

Notice to Parents

There has been a number of boys playing in the cemetery. Signs that were posted throughout the cemetery have been removed by some one. This will have to be stopped and all parents are asked to please instruct their children to stay out of the cemetery. If not parents will be held responsible. By order of the board.

Uncle Henry:—"I joined the Burley Pool early and I have since cleaned up every debt I owe. You now behold a happy and prosperous man."

Uncle Elias:—"Well, I did the same thing, and since receiving payment on my recent deliveries of tobacco I have on hand more money than I know what to do with. By the way, if you happen to run across anybody who needs any money just refer him to me."

CHRISTMAS SERVICES

Beautifully Rendered at Christian Church Last Sunday

The Christmas services at the Christian church last Sunday were of unusual merit and helpfulness. In the morning a Christmas cantata entitled "Bethlehem," was given by the choir. Mrs. Mae Hughes Noland, the director and organist, and the singers had worked faithfully in preparation and this work showed in the practically perfect rendering of the cantata.

The auditorium had been decorated in evergreen with a large white cross immediately in front of the organ. The windows were draped with the light, and candles were effectively placed in the decorations. The choir members were clad in white. Everything in the surroundings brightened the effect of the old but beautiful Christmas story as it was told in song and scripture readings.

Several requests that the cantata be repeated have been made; but at the present time it is not definitely known whether it will be repeated or not. If so, announcement will be made next Sunday morning. The evening services consisted of a religious program. Again the decorations were very effective and the different parts well rendered. The story of the birth of Christ was depicted in song and pantomime. The Madonna, the Wise Men and the Shepherds were impressively represented while the singing, as in the morning, was very beautiful. The young men and women of Mrs. Currey's Sunday School Class put the pageant on and thereby placed the congregation and many others of the community under obligation to them.

Large crowds filled the auditorium morning and evening. At the close of the pageant in the evening a thank offering, consisting of provisions and money was made. Some of those in need in the community were remembered and a barrel of canned fruit and preserves was sent to the Orphans Home at Louisville. The money offering, amounting to about $75.00, was sent to the Board of Ministerial Relief to help pension the aged ministers among the Disciples.

Baptist Church News

The joint program given by the Sunbeams and the Junior Union last Sunday evening was interesting and instructive and enjoyable by all present. The treat for the Sunday school scholars was given out at the close of the program.

The services next Sunday will be of interest to all, but to members in particular, as we will have a roll call of the membership. The topic for the morning will be "Visions and Vows," and in the evening there will be a watchnight service, topic, "What of the Night?"

The Sunday School and Young People's services at the usual hour. All are invited to attend our services.

To Our Friends—The Public

We want to thank you earnestly for your favors during the year that is closing and hope for a continuance during the year that is soon to be ushered in. Wishing you all a very Prosperous and Happy New Year.

Mountain Sheep

Improved by Use of Purebred Rams

Using purebred rams on the common mountain sheep of Kentucky in tests at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, added all the way from three-fourths of a pound to more than two and a half pounds of wool to the average of five pounds which these animals generally shear and in practically every instance improved the quality of that wool, according to a new bulletin, "Breeding Experiments with Kentucky Mountain Ewes," which has just come off the press at the experiment station of the College of Agriculture. The new publication summarizes the results of experiments that have been carried on by the station since 1915 to show how the native mountain ewes of the state could be bred up with purebred rams.

Rams of the Rambouillet breed should be given careful consideration by Kentucky sheep men when they are considering the blood to use in building up their flocks, the new bulletin points out. This was found to be the most satisfactory breed for improving the mountain ewes. Ewes from this cross produced heavier, finer and more valuable fleeces and when bred to purebred mutton rams they produced market lambs of better quality and type than the lambs from the common mountain ewes. Southdown, Cheviot and Hampshire rams also were used in the experiment.

The grade Hampshire lambs resulting from crossing the mountain ewes and purebred Hampshire rams gained rapidly and were ready for market sooner than those from any of the other crosses. However, they lacked the quality of the Southdown and Cheviot grades.

The Southdown grade had excellent quality and good mutton form but gained slowly and required a longer time to reach marketable weights than those from the Cheviot, Hampshire and Rambouillet crosses. Rams of the four breeds used in the experiment sired lambs that were more meaty, grew more rapidly, were of finer quality and dressed out a higher percentage than lambs sired by scrub rams.

The new bulletin, which is No. 243 may be obtained by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

PROSPECTS FOR AGRICULTURE IN 1923

New Year's Statement and resume of Agricultural Conditions and Prospects from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace

Twelve months ago most of the six million farmers of the United States were starting on the long hard climb out of the valley of economic depression. They have not yet attained the heights which are bathed in the grateful sunshine of prosperity. Some, indeed, have fallen by the way. Others are still in the valley. Nevertheless, as we stop a bit and look backward we can see that very considerable ground has been gained by the great majority, and we can enter the New Year with renewed hope and with that courage which comes from the realization that we are really making progress.

A year ago, when speaking of the prospects for farming in 1922, I said that while there was no reason to expect boom times for the farmer in the near future, there was promise of better times, both for the farmer and for those whose business is largely dependent upon him. The year has brought fulfillment of that promise. Speaking generally, times are better, much better, than a year ago, both for agriculture and for industry.

Crops have been good, on the whole. Prices of the crops are mostly considerably higher. While there has been a corresponding advance in the prices of the things the farmer must buy, the total sum which farmers will receive for the crops of this year is greater by a billion and a half dollars or more than that which they received for the crops of last year. This will certainly mean better times on the farm, and farm folks will be able to ease up a little on the grinding economy they were forced to practice the preceding year.

The labor cost of producing the crops of 1922 was still further reduced. There were some substantial reductions in freight rates. Much helpful legislation has been enacted and more will be this winter. Interest rates are lower and the credit strain has been eased. This has made it possible for many farmers who are rather heavily involved to refund their obligations and get themselves in condition to win through.

There are still some dark spots. In some sections weather conditions were unfavorable and crops were short, and farmers in these sections are having a very hard time of it. Freight rates are still too high, especially for those who must pay for a haul to market.

Taxes are high, but this is largely due to the increase in local taxes, over which farmers themselves must exercise control.

There has been gratifying growth in farmers' cooperative marketing associations, and more of them are being organized on a sound business basis.

Aside from the help which has been given by the legislation and by administrative activities, strong economic forces are at work to restore a more normal relation between agriculture and other industries.

The peril in the agricultural depression is more keenly realized by other groups than ever before, and on every hand a sincere desire is being evidenced to do what can be done safely to help the farmer better his condition.

Everything considered, we have good reason to expect still better things for agriculture in the year 1923.

Some people don't know when to quit because they never start.

Mrs. W. K. Davis was hostess Friday for the members of the W. C. T. U. Delicious sandwiches and hot chocolate were served and the afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan Ballard entertained Christmas Eve with a delightful course dinner at one o'clock at their beautiful country home, "Pine Crest." It is their regular custom to have a Xmas dinner for their relatives and the occasion is always anticipated with a great deal of pleasure by those who are fortunate enough to attend. The house was artistically decorated with holly, mistletoe, ferns and narcissus. The table was very attractive in its appointments and the Xmas colors, red and green being carried out in the decorations, also the ices, cakes and minis. In the center was a lovely poinsettia and the place cards were also done in poinsettias, while silver candlesticks with red candles were attractively placed which added greatly to the beauty of the table. A most delightful four course menu was served and certainly was enjoyed by each guest. In the late afternoon the hosts gave the guests quite a pleasant surprise, as a Xmas tree had been arranged in the upper store which was most lovely in its decorations and each guest was remembered with gifts. The hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Ballard were also remembered with a large number of gifts. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Sparks, Master Hughes Sparks, Miss Alice Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Elder, of Nicholasville, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Guerrant, of Louisville, Mrs. W. T. Woolfolk and Miss Marguerite Woolfolk, of Lexington, Mrs. Eliza H. Ballard and Miss Mayme Lee Ballard.

Lee Farmers Organize To Improve Farms and Homes

Farmers and their wives in five different communities of Lee county, cooperating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington, have organized community clubs and mapped out definite programs of work for their sections of the county in an effort to better their farms and homes, according to County Agent T. H. Jones. The communities involved in the project include Belle Point, Kash, Proctor, Rocky Hill and Long Shoal.

In planning the programs of work for the coming year, representative farmers and their wives in each of the communities met at different times with County Agent Jones and decided among the main farm and home activities in their particular communities. Some of the big factors that limit the results from these activities were then decided upon after which remedies were outlined and demonstrations planned for the community to show how these remedies could be applied. Some farmer or farmer's wife was appointed in each case to superintend the demonstrations that will be conducted in connection with the various activities.

Corn, soybeans, poultry and junior agricultural club work will get attention in the Belle Point community. Zack McGuire, James Durbin, and Miss Belle McGuire were selected as the community leaders in these projects. Fruit growing, hogs, poultry and soil building will get attention in the Kash community with Eleven Hollan, Sherman Bradley, Mrs. Dora Bradley and Gus Bradley acting as the leaders. Junior club work, soil improvement, health and sanitation, home beautification and roads will get attention in the Proctor community with Albert Tiley, Albert Hall, Mrs. Strat Evans and Mr. and Mrs. William Sternberg acting as leaders. Fruit growing, poultry, hogs, soil improvement and roads will receive attention in the Rocky Hill community, according to the program of work outlined for that district. The leaders in the different projects include Robert Brandenburg, Mary Roland, J. W. Evans, Samuel Doneyway and Hill Congelton. In the Long Shoal community, junior club work, poultry, corn, hogs and fruit will get attention with Samuel Taylor, Mrs. Sarah Palmer, D. V. Childers, Robert Taylor and Walker Taylor acting as the project leaders.

BLACK IS UNLUCKY

By ALICE DAVENPORT

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Bob was known far and wide as a model husband; steady as the rock of Gibraltar. As steady as he was, at times he was in despair. Letty, his wife, was a veritable gadabout.

Bob remonstrated in vain. Letty would dissolve into tears—a way she had; but when her tears dried she was on the trot again with her cronies. Coming down on the 5-15, Bob ran across Charley, the latest victim of matrimony. Poor Charley was in the throes of indignation.

"If Grace could only learn to cook," moaned Charley. "But you can't sympathize, Letty is such a peach at that sort of thing."

"Yes, she is," admitted Bob; "but what would you do if your wife insisted on going out every night?"

"I'd beat her to it," Charley assured him.

"There is only one thing for you to do, Bob," Charley told him. "There is an old superstition that says if you want to keep a cat you must butter her feet. Apply that to Letty."

Now, Bob had a deep vein of superstition, although he would have died rather than admit it. If he could butter Letty's feet—if he could—he would try it and see how it worked.

Letty met him at the door, bubbling over, as usual. She served the delicious dinner and enjoyed watching him eat. As soon as he had finished his hearty meal and she had eaten like a bird, she drew him into the cozy living room.

"I have a secret for you, Bob," her eyes dancing. "I am going to stay at home tonight, all alone with you."

"Letty, are you sick?" Bob was really anxious.

"Don't rub it in now, honey, or I'll change my mind."

She was in her most charming mood. She sang his favorite songs; she played his favorite selections; she made harmless drinks—delicious all the more because they were harmless.

"Why can't it be like this all the time, Letty?" he asked her. "Could anything be better than this?" Now Letty could have been disagreeable and replied in return:

"No, nothing could be nicer for you, but what about me. I have done the cooking, the entertaining, the talking, and I am almost exhausted. I have given and you have taken."

But she was a wise Letty and knew better than to spoil a perfect evening.

"My dear boy," she smiled in her enchanting way, "you enjoy this because it is so rare. If we had a night like this every night in the week you would soon tire of the monotony. You haven't even read your sporting news, Bob. I must have charmed you, surely. I'm going to break the record to-night and go to bed early."

She went through her retiring routine more quickly than usual. Bob did the nightly chores; wound the clock and set out the milk jars. As he turned to enter the house, something soft rubbed against his leg. He looked down and saw a beautiful black cat. He liked cats, particularly black ones, but Letty could not bear to have one in the house. He stooped to stroke the glossy fur and the cat purred. He could not resist the impulse to open the screen door and let the cat enter with him.

By the time Bob had fed the stranger, made a bed for it and fastened the windows it was growing late. It was silent upstairs. Letty must be asleep. He looked at the cat, then thought of the butter. He went swiftly to the icebox, brought out a pat of butter, clicked off the lights and went silently up the stairs.

Letty was sleeping peacefully. She made a perfect picture of repose, and he gazed, well satisfied that everything was working out as he wished. The night was so warm that she had thrust her feet out from the thin covering, and Bob stooped to apply the butter.

Now Letty had peculiarly sensitive feet. As Bob plastered the butter he touched a sensitive nerve. Letty gave a powerful kick, landing on Bob's right eye. He gave a howl of pain, while Letty turned over to a more comfortable position. She would not wake up; she was a heavy sleeper, as he knew from experience.

Hours later, or so it seemed, Letty awoke. There at her feet was a horrible black creature, flicking her toes. She could not move; she felt petrified as the terrible animal glared and looked ready to spring if she uttered a cry to Bob.

After an eternity of waiting, the animal jumped off the bed and slunk away.

"Bob," she called, in her weakest voice. "Bob, dear, wake up; I'm so frightened."

Bob was in no comforting mood, but he got out of bed and turned on the lights. Letty screamed when she saw him.

"Look at your eye, it is all black. Such a night I've had. What did you do to your eye?"

Bob refused to say what he did. She sat up with the air of a tragedy queen.

"There was some terrible black animal sitting on my feet most of the night. Don't think I'm crazy, Bob; he really did. I shall make one resolution for the future. Never again will it be early to bed for me; and as for these 'at home nights,' we had better make them far apart."

Farm and Home News From Over Kentucky

Twenty-two Crittenden county farmers and their wives are cooperating with County Agent John R. Spencer and the extension division of the College of Agriculture in keeping records on the number of eggs laid by their hens in order to show their neighbors how good feed and the right kind of care helps hens lay more eggs in winter.

Limestone as a means of building up soils and boosting crop yields is getting increased attention from Webster county farmers living in the Slaughter community, County Agent Lloyd E. Cutler says. Seven of them this fall ordered 80 tons which will constitute the first limestone they have ever used on their farms.

Demonstrations on stripping and grading burley put on in Pulaski county through the cooperation of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington furnished the means of showing scores of farmers in that section of the state how to strip and grade their leaf crop to the best advantage, County Agent W. C. Wilson says. A total of 63 farmers attended the six demonstrations held in different parts of the county.

Wayne county farmers are continuing to take steps for the improvement of their poultry flocks, County Agent H. J. Hayes says. Eight purebred breeding cockerels recently were placed on farms of the county while another model poultry house was completed.

Purebred livestock is gaining in numbers on Leslie county farms, County Agent T. H. Britton says. Four purebreds are among the latest additions to the list.

Drive Against Cattle T. B. Started by Lewis Farmers

The work of eradicating tuberculosis from Lewis county cattle herds has been given a good start with the testing of 500 head of animals, according to County Agent R. O. Bate. Six of the animals tested proved to be carriers of the disease and were condemned as reactors. It later developed that two of the six reactors had been purchased by their last owner from a farmer whose wife and infant child died of tuberculosis. Farmers throughout the county are cooperating with County Agent Bate in the drive against bovine tuberculosis by acting as district chairman to push the work in their communities. Nineteen of these chairman already have listed 1,618 head of cattle owned by 327 different farmers for the test.

As The Editor Sees It

"An editor is always 'seeing things.'"

Sometimes he mentions them and at others he doesn't. It often depends upon whether or not a good purpose can be served.

At the dawn of a new year we have in mind a few things that we have seen, the mention of which at least will serve no ill purpose.

We have seen little children pass adults on the street and look wistfully for some form of recognition—without receiving it.

Thoughtfulness on the part of the adults, of course, but nevertheless an oversight which pains the infantile heart and leaves an impression that is not easy to forget.

We have seen beautiful women walk along while men stared intently at them—even to the point of rudeness.

This is not a fault peculiar to the men of our community, as our men measure up to the standard of mankind in general.

It is simply a recognition of the beauty of womanhood, but a recognition so forcible in its nature as to be often misunderstood and to cause embarrassment and resentment.

We have seen men spend dollars for personal pleasures and slip a dime in the collection box at church.

It probably does not occur to them that the dime they give is for the service of God, and that if it were not for the tolerance of the same God there would be no expensive pleasures for them to enjoy.

We have seen people sit still while opportunity walked all around them, waiting vainly to be grasped. Possibly they expected opportunity to take them gently by the hand and lead them gently up to the trough of plenty.

But opportunity didn't.

We have seen people stand up and deliberately boast to the point of prevarication, and expect others to take them at face value.

They probably did not realize that those who outwardly accepted them at face value were secretly reading the heart that wags the tongue.

We have seen frisky motorists go tearing along the highways and laugh sardonically when some pedestrian had to jump to keep from being crushed under the wheels.

If the tables could be reversed, and the motorist were required to make a lightning jump to save his own hide, he might do a little cursing himself.

And, too, he might realize what an unmitigated nuisance he is to the public, and how low he stands in the estimation of law abiding motorists and the public at large.

Perhaps—if he has any brains.

We have seen many things, in many places, and at many times, that would make many people smile—or squirm—if they were reduced to cold and unfeeling type.

What have you seen?

Another Year of What?

Again an old year is behind us and a new one is before us, to make or mar—by our own acts.

Have we any community plans for the new year?

Are we going to make it a progressive year? Or shall we just drift along?

The ship that drifts goes only as fast as the tide or current that carries it. It would take a long time for such a vessel to cross the Atlantic.

But install a powerful engine in that ship, and turn on the full force of its power, and it will plow its way through the water at a rapid rate of speed.

It is so with us, in this community.

Our rate of progress rests in our own hands. We can drift along, and let another year find us about where we are now, or we may employ the force of will power and determination and forge ahead, as the power driven ship does on the waters of the seas.

We may 'let well enough alone,' and drag along through life without ambition or hope of substantial reward, or we may "pep up" and get there almost before we know it.

If we go after a thing we at least have a fair chance of getting it. If we wait for it to come to us we soon learn what waiting means.

The editor considers this an opportune time to suggest that the Chamber of Commerce hold some kind of a public meeting, and submit suggestions and plans for community betterment.

No one man carries all of the community brains around under his own hat, and hence it is not from his lips alone that all of the good suggestions must come.

Every person has ideas, and it is but fair to assume that at least some of them are worthy of consideration.

From chance words great events often occur. And some one in our midst may be waiting for an opportunity to utter that word.

Let's have a meeting, and exchange views.

There is plenty to be done, and enough of us to do it.

Business not mentioned—Just want your attention—you'll see the Go-Getta-Man.

Moments Worth Remembering.
You will find, as you look back upon your life, that the moments that stand out above everything else are the moments when you have done things in a spirit of love.—Henry Drummond.

Ancient Culinary Ideas.

Some of the early ideas of delicacies would not appeal to the modern taste, nor would such methods as some Roman cooks applied to the red mullet, which was cooked while alive in a glass vessel on the table.

Daily Thought.
It is the mind that makes the man, and our vigor in our immortal soul.—Ovid.

Helpful Thought for Today.
Do not try to grasp too much of life at one time. Live today well; life is a mosaic and each tiny piece should be cut and set with skill.—Boston Transcript.

Wild Cinnamon.
Although the cultivation of cinnamon in Indo-China is increasing, most of the product comes from the wild shrub. When a native discovers a cinnamon tree he must make a declaration before the local administration.

Prayer.
More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice rise like a fountain for us night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life within the brain, if, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer both for themselves and those whom God shall find? For so the whole round world is every way bound by golden chains about the feet of God.—Alfred Tennyson.

Isaacs-Cook

The wedding of Miss Madge Montgomery Isaacs and Mr. William Robinson Cook, Jr., which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at the First Christian church was picturesque and beautiful in every detail.

The church was elaborately decorated with cedar, holly and mistletoe, tall cedar trees were placed at either side of the choir loft and smaller trees were used to bank the choir and the pulpit. The tall trees were also used at each end of the balconies with garlands of cedar boughs and holly along the balcony rails. Clusters of mistletoe were suspended at intervals from below the balcony. A large cedar tree was placed at the altar with tall boughs of holly and mistletoe at either side. Cathedral candles in seven branch candelabra, shed a soft glow over the bridal party.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Katherine Letcher, presiding at the organ, played "The Hallelujah" from Ties of Hoffman, and "To a Wild Rose" from McDowell. Two songs, "Until" and "When You Are Truly Mine," were heartily sung by Mrs. Hughes Jackson.

The impressive ceremony was said by Dr. Madison A. Hart. The bridal party entered promptly at four o'clock to the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March." Through the rear doors and down opposite aisles came Messrs. William Kinnaird, of Lancaster, and Edward Prewitt, of Mt. Sterling, they were followed by Messrs. Chas. Perry Cecil III, and Rufus Preston Carter, both of Danville. Behind Mr. Cecil came the bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Letcher Cook, sister of the groom; she was followed by the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Salter. Just preceding the bride, came the charming little flower girl, Miss Lillian Bosley. The bride entered alone and was met at the altar by the groom and Mr. Val Cook, who was his brother's best man. The bride, always beautiful, was unusually so in her draped gown of white satin with bertha of rose point lace and train of satin. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

Miss Salter was regal in a gown of pink chiffon and cream lace with silver girdle and train of chiffon, she carried a large arm bouquet of Columbia roses tied with long streamers of pink tulle. Miss Cook was most striking in a gown of pale yellow georgette trimmed in gold and carrying an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses tied with tulle to match. Little Miss Lillian Bosley was dainty and exquisite in a white chiffon frock with butterfly bow of pink tulle at the shoulder and bandeau of pink chiffon and tulle; she carried a basket of Columbia roses and gypsophila.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook left immediately after the ceremony for a short motor trip before returning to Danville to make their home.

The bride is the charming and accomplished niece of Mayor W. D. McIntyre, of this city. She has made her home here for several years and for the past year has held a position in one of the city schools. She is a graduate of Kentucky College for Women in the class of 1920.

Mr. Cook is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson Cook, of this city and is a progressive young farmer of this county. Both he and his bride are among the most popular members of Danville society.—Danville Messenger.

 pected.

Miss Dean Hunter has sold since Jan., 1922, $260 worth of milk and butter. This does not include eggs and other farm products.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Naylor entertained a number of their friends at a splendid Xmas dinner. A very enjoyable day was spent by her guests.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Clark, Mr. Price
 Clark and Mrs. Virgie May, spent Tuesday in Lexington, the guests of Mr. Clark's mother, Mrs. Margaret Clark.

Mr. Green Estes and Miss Deane
 Hunter attended their home church at Kirksville Sunday and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Estes.

The Xmas tree given by the ladies of Pleasant Grove church was greatly enjoyed by those present. Much merriment was offered when Santa presented the old men with toys.

Miss Dean Hunter was hostess at dinner Tuesday. A delightful repast was served, consisting of all the delicacies of the season. A very enjoyable time was spent by those present.

Mrs. Wm. Blanks and Miss Annie
 Blanks entertained at a delightful Xmas dinner. A number of friends enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs.
 Blanks. The guests from a distance were Mrs. Yeakey and Mrs. Anderson, of Hubble.

Miss Martha Curtis, the Primary teacher of the S. S. provided a small Xmas tree for the enjoyment of her class Sunday morning. The bright little faces bespoke of their happiness when Miss Curtis presented each one a gift from the tree.

 last Saturday. It is reported they were married in Danville and went on to Lexington for a short stay.
 They were accompanied by Mr. Scott and Miss Hammack, of Paint Lick.
 The contracting party are well known and have many friends both in Garrard and Madison counties who wish them much happiness.

The program and Xmas tree at Mason, given on last Friday by Miss Alice Sutton was an entire success.
 The audience as well as the children enjoyed the affair especially the recitation given by Miss Mae Belle Sutton and the monologue by Miss Sallie Lou Naylor. Master Ernest Roberts acted as Santa Claus. No tree looked more beautiful—decorated with Christmas bells, tinsel and popcorn.

Too Late.

A French scientist says that in order to attain a ripe old age it is necessary to sleep in a due north and south position. We may die young but we'll keep right on sleeping on our right der our chin. It's too late for us to start now worrying whether or not we're pointed north.

Composition of Dust.

Dust is made up of particles of un-burned carbon from smoke, fragments of wool cotton and hair, living organisms and finely divided mineral matter. All are constantly being cast into the air and they slip through cracks of houses and settle. After billions of particles have fallen, we say the floor is dusty.

What is a Drought?

According to an official definition which has been in use among meteorologists for over thirty years, an absolute drought is a period of more than fourteen consecutive days not one of which is a rain day. A rain day is a day with 0.1 in. or more of rain (an inch of rain means 101 tons to the acre). A partial drought is a period of more than 28 consecutive days, the mean rainfall of which does not exceed .01 in. per day.

Jefferson Flock Owners After More Winter Eggs

How to feed, house and manage their farm flock of chickens to get the most winter eggs has aroused considerable interest among Jefferson county farmers and their wives during the last few weeks. S. W. Anderson, assistant county agent of the county says. The keeping of records by 25 flock owners in the county and the organization of two groups of farmers and their wives for the purpose of studying various details of poultry feeding, care and management are among the developments that mark the new interest, he says.

The records being kept by the 25 farmers are proving to be especially interesting to chicken raisers of the county. In addition to keeping records on their flocks, the 25 persons are conducting them as demonstrations to show the value of a number of recommended poultry practices, thus making it possible for their neighbors to get practical pointers on how to feed and take care of their hens for the greatest egg production.

The number of hens in the various flocks ranges from 25 to 200 but all of them are being fed with the idea of increasing their egg production. The keeping of records began November 1st, and will continue for six months. Reports made by the record keepers on the number of eggs their hens are laying showed that about one-third of the hens in the various flocks were laying soon after the records were started. However, it is expected that under the good feed and care which the birds are receiving that at least half, and perhaps more, of them will be laying in the near future.

The two poultry study groups that have been organized each include about 50 farmers and their wives. Monthly meetings will be held during the winter at which time special attention will be given to proper housing, feeding, culling, mating, hatching and breeding chicks. It is hoped that the work of the study groups will result in the development of high producing purebred flocks of chickens each having the required characteristics of its particular breed.

BILL'S HALF-HOUR

By M. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Bill Evans, whistling aloud out of his happy, care-free young heart, picked up the letter which lay on his desk, unfolded it, and read. His whistle stopped abruptly.

He read the letter again, spread out on his desk, as if a second perusal might alter the situation. "Dear Bill—Don't think that I have forgotten you, for all the long silence. When I told you I did not love you enough to marry, but loved your friend instead, I was wrong. He never asked me again, by the way. If you still want me, I will marry you. In fact, I am taking a chance and coming out by the next boat, which will dock at Honolulu almost as soon as you receive this letter. If you don't want me, Bill, why, I can at least go home again! As ever, "HEATHER SHAW."

Heather Shaw! Yes, he had once thought he loved her—had been pretty well cut up when she turned him down. But he hadn't thought of her for months. Not since he had met Eileen Cary to whom he was to be married at noon tomorrow.

But noon tomorrow! Why, that was when the Matsonia would dock, bringing Eileen's aunt to the wedding from her home in the States, and also Heather. How could he explain to Eileen that this girl had no claim on him? That the old affair—and it had hardly been that—was over and done with years ago.

How could he know that Heather would revive an affection for him she had never shown and out of a clear sky would descend to ruin his wedding day?

Bill rose and paced the floor of the comfortable study he shared with his old friend and present fellow worker at the Inter-Island Navigation company with nervous, angry strides. Then a strong desire surged within him to share his trouble with some one.

Should he tell Eileen? Instinct urged him to wait, yet the longing to hear her voice was overpowering.

He took down the receiver and called the number of her father's plantation on the city's outskirts. "That you, Eileen?"

"Yes?"

"Anxious for tomorrow?"

"Suppose—suppose you should hear—oh, nothing, dear; I don't know what I'm saying."

"Of course I love you. No, there never was any one else. On my word of honor Eileen!"

And yet, as he hung up, Bill could see the Matsonia steaming nearer and nearer, bringing the girl who apparently thought he still cared, as he hung up, he evidently must have seemed to cure years ago, when, spurred by a moonlight night at a dance at Coronado, he had suggested they be engaged. So long ago had it been that he had even forgotten why she had turned him down. Oh, the letter had mentioned his friend. What friend? To Billy the whole matter was as vague as that.

Temporarily Bill sat down and tried to reason a way out of the tangle. He would get his roommate to go down to the Matsonia and explain to Heather that he was about to be married, that she was mistaken in thinking he cared, that she must return on the next boat, providing she had funds. But, hang it, his roommate, the only one he could trust not to let the cat out of the bag to Eileen, had other duties as best man. He was to meet Eileen's aunt, take her to the church and return immediately to accompany Bill.

Meanwhile Heather, wondering why Bill had not met her, would probably be hunting him up, and like as not stumble on him as he entered the church! A nice contretemps that would be! For to Bill's disordered mind it seemed quite possible that any girl capable of chasing an old and discarded lover to Honolulu would be quite as capable of breaking up a wedding with another girl on the spot.

A wild thought leaped in Bill's brain. Suppose he bolted! Or suppose he dashed out to Eileen's and demanded she elope. Yet where could they elope to before Heather arrived? The islands are circumscribed when it comes to gossip and he was in a position to know that not even a tramp steamer for the South seas would be leaving port.

Hark! Who was that coming in downstairs? A shiver of apprehension shook Bill; then angrily he shrugged his shoulders. The Matsonia hadn't raised Diamond Head yet. At worst it would only be his roommate. His roommate it was, who bounded up the stairs two steps at a time and burst in the door.

"Caught a ride back on Cramer's yacht, so got here sooner. How's the little bridegroom? You're looking awfully good. Trace up and tell me what you think of a double wedding?"

"A double wedding, Will?"

"Sure! Didn't you read the little note I left on your desk for you to read? Or did you think it was yours and I opened it by mistake? I've always been sweet on Heather. Thought at one time you were. And now, bless her heart, she's coming out to me! Oh, you're not the only lucky bird!"

"No, William," said Bill, and rising, took a long, deep breath, "but I'm so darned lucky that I can hardly bear up under it!"

Your Wife is Your Partner

Don't force your wife to beg for household money.

Don't dole it out to her as if it were a charity.

Your wife is your partner—treat her as such.

Make her a monthly or weekly allowance—as liberal as your financial condition will permit. Then once a week or once a month deposit that sum in the bank to her credit. Let her run her part of your co-partnership on a business basis. Women do not like to be eternally begging and asking for money—and they should not have to do so.

Tribe of Indians Marquette Met.
The first reference to the Missouri tribe of Indians made by a European was by Marquette in a letter written in 1670 to La Mercur, his father superior, as Indians "who use canoes of wood." On Marquette's map appears the name and location of the "Ou Messouris."

Truthful Sam.
"Samuel, does you take this woman for the lawfully wedded wife?" asked the colored parson glancing at the diminutive, cat-eyed, low-browed bridegroom, who stood beside 210 pounds of feminine assurance. "Ah takes nothin'," goodly responded the bridegroom. "Ah's bein' tooked."—Los Angeles Times.

Great Woman and Great Empress.
It was Maria Theresa, empress of Germany (1717-1780) who spoke the memorable words, "I want to meet my God as usual." When dying she refused a dose of opium. Carlyle says of her: "She was most brave, high and plump; beautiful and radiant with good nature; though of a temper that would easily catch fire, perhaps no colder woman lived."

KELLEY'S TOBACCO SEED THE IMPROVED STANDING UP BURLEY

Don't be deceived into buying inferior seed. Buy the Genuine Kelley Seed. THE IMPROVED STANDING UP BURLEY, with the LONG POINTED LEAVES, which gives it from three to four inches more length.

The old Standing Burley had a round pointed leaf, but B. L. Kelley and Sons, by careful breeding and crossing have developed their present STANDING UP BURLEY with the long pointed leaf, which gives it more length and more weight, still retaining its bright color, which has made this seed famous throughout the United States.

Price $2.00 an ounce, $12.00 half pound, $24.00 a pound. All in ounce packages. None genuine without signature, which appears on every package.

Backache Ceases

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS give quick relief from backache, lame back, and rheumatic pains due to disordered kidneys and bladder. They relieve first, and gradually bring back health, vigor and ambition.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

are made of pure material, carefully and wisely compounded, tonic in action and quick to give good results.

The testimonial below is one of thousands we have received from sufferers who have found relief.

"I have been troubled with weak kidneys and several times in the last ten years I had that terrible backache and tired out feeling, scarcely able to do my work. Foley Kidney Pills made me feel like a new person."—Mrs. G. Ryde, Homestead, Mich.

Washington Leaf Growers Get Pointers on Grading

Important pointers on the stripping and grading of burley tobacco this fall have been explained to close to 300 Washington county farmers by means of nine demonstrations put on in this section of the State through the cooperation of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association and the extension Division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington, County Agent R. M. Heath says. Demonstrations were held on the farms of J. R. Claybrook, C. W. Homen, Everett Wakefield, R. A. Thompson, J. H. Hopper, William Arnold, Jack Rayburn, George Russell and Judge Gowin, W. L. McMurry, grader from the burley association, conducted the demonstrations. According to those who attended the demonstrations, tobacco in this part of the state this year is one-third better than it was last year. Very little injury from house burning and practically no green tobacco was found. The crop also is said to have good color.

You still have plenty of time in which to do your 1923 Christmas shopping.
